Disease Among the Indians.

The Reese River Reveille of the 5th instant, contains the annexed: "A disease of the eye has broken out among the Indians, which appears to be contagious and threatens to destroy the sight of the whole tribe. We do not know the causes of the disease, but he live it to be considered by the believe it to be superinduced by the smoke and dirt in which they live. We do not know that it is the duty of the Indian Agent to attend to this matter, but it ought to be. The Piutes and Shoshones of this section do not trouble him much, as a general thing, but on behalf of the poor, suffering creatures, we call on him to do something in their behalf. The malady is spreading and men, women and chil-

It was in Paris. An elegant lady goes outshopping. While she is en-gaged there is a heavy fall of rain. The streets are flooded, and, to add to her distress her carriage stands on the far side of a large, open square which has become a lake. She signals to the driver, but his horses being young, will not face the water. She stands on the edge of the curb, stamping her little feet and not knowing what to do. A gentleman passes and takes in his cigar aside he steps up to the lady, seizes her by the waist, delicately plunges into the tide and lands her safely on the lower step of her cartonishment she turns around and mut-

Insult to Immigrants.

We presume that if the immigrants now coming into this State were told that they were a different class of people from those who came here in '49; that they were wanting in the energy, laudable undertaking and that by enterprise and industry which char-their superior skill and earnest efforts acterized the early settlers, they would deny the imputation and assert themselves the equal in manhood and industry of any who have preceded them. We imagine that the people coming here now are coming on their own responsibility and expect to rely on their own means and efforts for the support of themselves and families. Yet, such does not seem to be the conquena street, opposite the U. S. Hotel. | clusion of many of California's people and journals. We hear of preparations for the immigrants and in one or two instances charitable individuals have suggested the establishment of soup houses at which the impecunious immigrant might obtain the means to keep soul and body together without money and without price. However well these propositions may be meant, we cannot but regard them plumbing and gas and steam pipe fit- as libels on our State and insults to ting. ### Disseminate Information.

In view of the fact that thousands of persons in the East are now seeking information relative to the soil and climate of California, for the purpose of definitely determining whether they shall or shall not seek homes there, and in order to controvert the misrepresentations of Southern Caliproposition to make to our Chamber HERALD and of the other papers pubcharacter which persons who contemplate coming to this State most desire. Fourteen months ago the HERALD commenced the work of describing Los Angeles Valley-its soil, climate, resources, its present condition and future prospects. We have steadily applied ourselves to the task up to the present time, and as a result of our labor we point to the hundreds of families now residents of this valley who testify that they were induced to come here through information obtained from the columns of the WEEKLY HERALD. This source of information may be greatly enlarged by the Chamber of Commerce and wealthy individuals ordering and sending East our weekly papers in larger numbers than are sent from the offices of publication. The plan is adopted in the middle portions of the State and as the papers sent from there contain nothing favorable of Southern California, it behooves our people to meet facts, the evidence of which is found in our own papers.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF CAL., LOS ANGELES, May 15, 1875. At the regular monthly meeting of this So ciety, held in this city on the 3d of April, 1875 and a quorum being present, the following resolution was offered by Dr. John S. Griffin and unanimously adopted:

At the next meeting of the Society, held in Los Angeles on the 8th day of May, 1875, a To the President and Directors and Stockholdof the President and Directors and Stockholders of the Southern District Agricultural Society of California:

The undersigned Committee, to whom was referred the subject of increasing the stock of the corporation and ascertaing the debts of said corporation required to be paid as soon as practicable, respectfully reports that by a vote of the stock holders at a regular meeting of the Society, the same in their opinion may be legally done. That upon examination of the Articles of Incorporation on file in the Clerk's office, as well as upon reading and examining the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society, there is stitution and By-Laws of the Society, there is no particular sum of money limited or specified as capital stock of said corporation; and the only reference made to that subject is simply a resolution adopted by the Society and recorded among its proceedings.

We are, therefore, of the opinion that no legal obstacle exists to prevent this Society from increasing the capital stock of said Society from five hundred shares to six hundred shares, as indicated in your late resolution in shares, as indicated in your late resolution in the appointment of this Committee. Upon the report of the Secretary of this company and corporation, which we believe to be relia-ble and correct, we report as the indebtedness which it is necessary to take steps to provide means for the early and prompt payment to Second—That each stockholder as represented by the number of shares now owned by him or her, shall be entitled to receive of the additional shares of stock hereby authorized additional shares of stock hereby authorized to be issued, one additional share of stock for each share of stock now owned or held by such stockholder, on payment to the Treasurer of said Society the sum of thirty-five ($35.00 dollars for each additional share of stock so paid for, and on presentation of the Treasurer's receipt to the Secretary of the Society And such certificates of shares of stock shall be held by the respective holders as paid-up stock in full, and shall so express on the face of the certificates of stock so issued, and in no case shall he be liable to pay assessments.

Now, therefore, I, James F. Burns, Secretary of said Southern District Agricultural Society of California, do officially notify each member of the proceedings in the premises and request that they be present, either in person or by proxy, at the next meeting of said Society, which will be held at the Society's private room at the Fashion Saloon, in the city of Los Angeles, or Monday, June 7, 1875,

At 1 o'clock P. M. I would also state, for the benefit of those who are not residents of this city, that the Society has been offered $100 per share for its unsold 200 shares, by one party, and that another party has made a still more liberal offer for the land belonging to the Society and not in absolute use. It was the above propositions that induced the action in the premises. As it requires a majority vote of all stock sold, each member will please, if he cannot be present in person, to send his proxy to some member residing in the city of Los Angeles, with instructions how to vote. my21 3t JAMES F. # IRRIGATION.

The Danger of Improper Legislation-The Work Should be Done by Private Enterprise.

To the Editor of the Chronicle:

Sir: The great interest evinced in your interesting articles on the subject of Irrigation, induces me to offer a few remarks. The great importance of irrigation to the state is admitted by every one. The folly of allowing our large rivers to run idly to the sea, when they might be utilized on the land, is also quite apparent. It is roughly estimated that ten millions of gallons per second is the average discharge of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, and every gallon of this water in the Spring will probably insure a pound of grain, if distributed over the plains in a judicious manner. On this estimate the loss is too great to be figured up. Here there are only two ways to stop this waste and of inaugurating a system of irrigation—by the State, or by private corporations. If the State takes hold of it, a grand bureau of corruption will be immediately instituted. Taxation for the purpose would be unconstitutional, and onerous u con those who have no interest in agriculture. In fact, it would be just as proper to issue State bonds for the construction of mining ditches; and, besides, if they were issued, the issue being unconstitutional, no capitalist would buy them. At the last session of the Legislature a bill was throduced empowering Commissioners to tssue bonds on irrigation districts, payments io be secured by property in the district. These would have been unconstitutionally issued, because the Legislature cannot delegate the power of taxation to Commissioners; and, besides, if I have the misfortune to own property within the district, why, if I do not need or want water, should I be taxed to enable Jones to irrigate his land? The only true method, therefore, is to encourage private enterprise by wise legislation, liberally confirming, amending and ratifying existing laws. The bugaboo of monopoly is all moonshine. Give any company undoubted right to take water out of any river—the first appropriator to be the first in right—and you will soon see all the rivers brought ou

Some few of the Italian States
granted rights to barons, nobles and corporations to take out the waters of the rivers and sell them to cultivators, with certain restrictions. An unhappy thing, as is well set forth by an English commissioner who examined the subject preparatory to fixing up a code for the East India system.

Let us look at Verrona to-day and see amidst its vicissitudes of political turpitude the frugality and happiness of her people and her capacity to maintain a population to the square mile. In those states the government maintains the sovereignty of every running drop of water, and have wise laws to curb the selfishness of individuals and corporations. Happily I consider that we are still the owners of the waters of the State by virtue of our inheritance from Spain, and we should wisely keep the control. There is no necessity of issuing bonds by the State, nor creating a vast State ex-penditure. The people have a right to ask that the State assume control of her waters, and make the Surveyor cal Boards of Commissioners; to fix will have to give way to universal out coming over Stanford's line. Old Dutch Funeral Customs.

Lucas Wyngard died in Albany in 1726, a bachelor, leaving some estate. The invitation to his funeral was very general, and those who attended re turned after the interment to the Farming & Orange Lands house, and a large number never left it until the dawn of the ensuing day. In the course of the night a pipe of wine, that had been stored in the cellar for some years before the occasion was drank, dozens of papers of tobacco were consumed, grosses of pipes de stroyed, scarce a whole decanter or glass left, and, to crown the whole the pall-bearers made a bonfire of their scarfs upon the hearth of the room. scarfs upon the hearth of the room where they were carousing. Even down to within the last 50 years, Albany was noted for the expensive character of its function. in a respectable Dutch family at that place, and especially of the head or any principal member of it. costs from $3,000 to $4,000. That of the first wife of the patroon, Stephen Van Renssalaer, it is said, cost him not less than $20,000. All his tenants were invited, and most of them were in Albany two or three days at his expense and 2000 linen scarfs were given on that occasion. It was formerly the custom there for a young man immediately previous to his marriage to send to the island of Maderia for a pipe or two the island of Maderia for a pipe or two of the best wine, a portion of which was used in the rejoicings consequent upon his marriage, and the remainder stowed away for his funeral and that of his wife, (An odd reversal of the order customary in Denmark in Hamlet's day,) It was also the practice in that city to send out special funeral invitations for all friends and acceptaints are sent the deceased, being quaintances of the deceased being about the same age, and likwise for all the clergy and professional men of the neighboring country and general invitations from the pulpits of the churches to the citizens at large. To the house of each person thus invited was sent a linen scarf, a pair of black silk gloves, a bottle of old Ma-deira wine and two funeral cakes, which were round and about the size of a dinner plate. This was done pre-vious to the funeral and was in addition to the great quanty of spiced wine and other liquors which, with tobacand other fiquors which, with tobac-co and pipes, were distributed and used at the house of the deceased im-mediately preceding and after the in-terment. When Gen. Schuyler died in that city, all the clegy, lawyers, physicians and even students in Al-

A newjuggernaut, it is said, has been set moving in society, and thou-sands annally fall beneath its wheels. It is a new stimulant known as hydrate of Chloral -- a salt of a burning pungent taste, having as its basis Chlo-roform, into which it is supposed to be changed in the blood. In small do-ses it is stimulant and antispasmodic; in larger, narcotic; and in excess it proin larger, narcotic; and in excess it produces death as instantaneously as a flash of lightning. Physicians have been variously divided in the opiniou of its ultimate results, some recognizing the fearful consequences of its use, others enthusiastically recommending it for ocean travelers as an mending it for ocean travelers as an antidote for seasickness. In England it has taken the place of opium, and chloral-eating is now as decided a vice asopium-eating, hash-heesh and absinthe drinking. The difference between opium and Chloral is that, under the same circumstances, opium is more imaginative, and paints things as they do not realy exist; chlo-ral merely increases the power of enjoying the real. A strange, dreamy enjoying the real. A strange, dreamy y sense of perfect ease, comfort and happiness takes the place of sorrows and cares; all affection and love are likewise banished, and the eater becomes practically a living. breathing vegetable. An opium eater has been known to live to a goodly old age. No Chloralist can survive three years. The stimulant is imported mostly from Germany, and a high authority asserts in the London Lancet that there is positively no antidote for the poiis positively no antidote for the poi-
